Relational pedagogy in higher education: the importance of relationships for student success
This workshop will focus on the transformative potential of human connections in university education. The workshop highlights the impact of well-timed conversations on student success, exploring how we can be 'mentors of the moment' for our students. Educators will learn practical strategies for fostering relationships within the classroom.

Facilitators: Dr Catherine-Ann O'Connell & Patrick Fitzgerald

Location: Online

Time: 10:00 am - 11:00 am

Using Turnitin
Turnitin software is used as a way of matching similarities in text submissions, and identifying areas of writing which could be improved. If you are new to using this tool or would like a refresher, please join us for this session where we will give an overview of the tool, demonstrate how to set up a Turnitin Assignment submission, and give some strategies to share with students on how to interpret their Turnitin report.

Facilitators: Dr Geraldine McDermott & Catherine O'Donoghue

Location: Online

Time: 2:00 pm - 3:00 pm

Tuesday, 11th June

UDL for beginners
The aim of this session is to showcase how Universal Design principles can be adapted to teaching in higher education and how it can be implemented in learning, teaching and assessment. The Plus-one approach is how UDL (Universal Design for Learning) can be adopted using one small change. This is also a practice-sharing session where colleagues can present successful Plus-One additions.
